State transition testing is used where some aspect of the system can be described in what is called a "finite state machine". This simply means that the system can be in a (finite) number of different states, and the transitions from one state to another are determined by the rules of the "machine".

Testing is a process rather than a single activity. This process starts from test planning then designing test cases, preparing for execution and evaluating status till the test closure. So, we can divide the activities within the fundamental test process into the following basic steps:
