Life for me ain't been no crystal stair. It's had tacks in it, And splinters, And boards torn up, And places with no carpet on the floorâ€” Bare. But all the time I've been a-climbin' on, And reachin' landin's, And turnin' corners, And sometimes goin' in the dark Where there ain't been no light. So, boy, don't you turn back. Don't you set down on the steps.

It is almost as if a boy had earlier said, "Life should be a crystal staircase," and this poem is the mother's response. The problem is that no boy would ever say life should be a crystal staircase! Maybe the boy said, "Life is rough," and the mother is the one who made up the glass stair metaphor.
